

BOSTON POLICE HOMICIDE UNIT
(Investigation report)

CC #11- 919 390

File Title	Investigator(s)	Page
Jerry Hurley	Sgts Flynn, Spellman, Dets Dwyer & Molloy	1 of
Incident location	Case #	Method
39 Eastbourne St		Bomb
Report Re:		Date
Interview Louis Giamarco		10-28-91

On Monday, October 28, 1991 Sgts Flynn & Spellman, Dets Dwyer & Molloy went to the Dedham P.D. and had conversation with Dedham detectives Sgt. Mike Ware, Marty Fitzhenry and Dan Panciocco relative to the bombing incident at 39 Eastbourne St.

At that time the above officers went to 106 Washington St., Dedham to the Dedham Service Center, phone # 326-1420.

Upon arrival we spoke with Louis Giamarco, W/M, dob 10-9-56 of 10 Decker St., Milton, phone # 696-1679. He corroborated what Berry had told us that Shay rented space on the lower level operated an auto body repair shop there and as a result picked up a lot of business from them. He stated that he had gotten along well with Shay until the firecracker incident.

Giamarco told us that he generally handled most of the paperwork end of the business and it was he who had informed Shay of the rent increase. Giamarco stated that he was disappointed at Shay's reaction and confirmed that they no longer spoke afterwards. He also told us that he liked Shay as a tenant and that if Shay had expressed his inability or even unwillingness to pay the increase they most likely would not have increased his rent.

He gave basically the same version of the firecracker incident as had his partner, Berry. Giamarco added that Desmond Matthews had long since left working there and was rumored to be living somewhere in New York. He also told us that when Shay expressed his dilemma over the customer's car, he had offered to clean it up but Shay told him to forget it and did it himself.

Giamarco also said that he occasionally observed Shay drive past the garage but never did more than look in their direction. Giamarco told us that when Shay had first moved into the garage that it was clean and in good shape but when Shay left it was cluttered with a large amount of car parts. He stated that he had an employee load a truck with fenders, hoods, bumpers and other car parts and dumped them into the driveway of where Shay was living.

(Page 2)

Giamarco told us that his garage had done some repair work on Shay's girlfriend's car and that even though many bills were sent to him he failed to respond. As a result the Dedham Service Center filed a suit in small claim's court. This matter was resolved about 2 or 3 months ago in the courthouse between the respective lawyers with Shay giving them $12. in cash and later mailing a check for approximately $270-280.

Giamarco also stated that he has no ill feeling towards Shay and expressed regret that the business relationship had dissolved.

Det William C. Dwyer