and the only boy in the Shay family. He has met Shay, Jr.'s mother and been to her home in Quincy. He also knows Shay, Jr. to exaggerate when talking to people.

At the onset of their relationship they went to diner a couple of times and to the movies. Mr. Stoller said he knew that Shay, Jr. had gone to California, Seattel, Washington and Van Couver, Canada during the course of their relationship. While away Shay, Jr., would telephone Mr. Stoller, usually collect, or call from a friend's house he (Shay, Jr) was staying with. Sometimes a few months would past without any contact from Shay, Jr. at all. Mr. Stoller said he has never heard or known Shay, Jr. talk bad about anyone including his (Shay, Jr.) father. And that he has never seen Shay, Jr mad.

Mr. Stoller was not sure of the exact date but either October 28, or 29, 1991 but he was certain it was after the detonation of the bomb he received a telephone call (not collect) from Shay, Jr. Shay, Jr. asked if Mr. Stoller hear what happened in Roslindale. Shay, Jr. told Mr. Stoller that it was his father's house where the detonation took place. Mr. Stoller described Shay, Jr.'s voice as being excited. Further inquiry' as to Shay, Jr.'s excitment Mr. Stoller said he (Shay, Jr.) seemed fearful. Mr. Stoller than said that he doubted what Shay, Jr. was saying and, "Just blew it off."

Their conversation continued with Shay, Jr., telling his mother's lawyer told them they should not stay at their Quincy home. As a result Shay, Jr. asked Mr. Stoller for a ride. Mr. Stoller agreed and picked Shay, Jr. up at his (Shay, Jr.'s) mother's house in Quincy. Mr. Stoller brought Shay, Jr. to Providence, Rhode Island. Mr. Stoller dropped Shay, Jr. off in Providence on Empire Street between the Providence public library and the Trinity Theater. He had dropped Shay, Jr. there before and observed Shay, Jr. go to the adult book store across the street from the theater. (Book store over Sabastian's)

Approximately one week later Mr. Stoller received a telephone call from Shay, Jr. Shay, Jr. told Mr. Stoller that the police believed he (Shay, Jr.) was involved in the making of the bomb. To himself, Mr. Stoller did and does not believe that Shay, Jr.'s has the mental capacity, ability or technology to be able to construct a bomb. Since the detonation Shay, Jr. has contacted him telephonically on three (3) occasions, none of which were collect calls.

Shay, Jr. also told Mr. Stoller that his father (Shay, Sr) was involved in a legal case that happened a few years prior in Dedham, Mass. At the time his father owned an auto body business and brought suit against the owner of the building where his father's shop was located.
